Subject:	Add instructions for building Debian packages directly from git repository
Description:	It would be useful to have instructions on how to build Debian packages from the git repository, for Debian people who want to do testing of recent changes. `README.md` seems like a natural place, or possibly a different file. Maybe a file in the `debian/` subdirectory would be suitable. However, I'd favor the `README.md`, since that is the most globally visible. I'm not sure what the correct tag is. This isn't a bug or a feature request, so I've used "Support". Please correct as necessary.
