Subject:	Red line (that indicates when new unread messages start) disappears after clicking on a Twitter link
Description:	The red line that indicates when new unread messages start disappears after clicking on a Twitter link (those new links in the GNOME frontend that lead you to the original URL of the tweet, or maybe all links).  Expected results: it should not disappear.

Corrected expected results (agreed with Mirco): should move the red line just above the message that contains the link.
